

NEWS NOTES
OF MOKENA

WRITING NEWS ITEMS

The pupils of the second year high school English class of the Mokena public school are writing news items for the News-Bulletin. They wrote some items last week and Editor Semmler liked them so well that he has asked Mr. Lively, if this cannot be a weekly practice. As this semester is devoted to journalism, writing news items fits in perfectly. There are seven pupils in the second year class, and each one contributes a news item every week. It is not entirely settled that this will be a weekly practice until the end of the school year, but it probably will. If you, as a reader of the News-Bulletin, like it, don't be afraid to tell the class about it. They do not mind a bit of applause.

MOKENA TO HAVE ORCHESTRA

A number of Mokena young people are forming an orchestra. The group consists of Mrs. C. A. Lively, pianist, Leon Kolber, Everett Cooper and Richard Kohl, saxophonists, Clyde Knudson, trumpet and Carlos Hall, drum. The orchestra has been practicing at the home of Mrs. Lively each Monday evening for the past month.

All members of the orchestra have had former experience. Mrs. Lively was before coming to Mokena, pianist for the Wabash Valley Orchestra of Robinson, Illinois. Mr. Cooper, Mr. Knudson, and Mr. Kohl played with the local orchestra which was formed a year or two ago, while Mr. Kolber has had a great deal of experience with the Joliet Township High School Orchestra. Mr. Hall has been part of the Hall Company Orchestra for the past several years.

As yet the orchestra lacks a banjoist, but that place will probably be filled by Mr. Wilbur Teska, who was banjoist of the former local orchestra.

The young people are making excellent progress in their music and will soon be ready to accept invitations to play for local dances and entertainments.

MOKENA LADY CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

Saturday evening, February 16, Mrs. Elmer Benson entertained relatives and friends at a birthday party. The evening was spent at bunco, and prizes were awarded to the winners. At twelve o'clock lunch was served. Among those present were: Mr. John Erickson, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Knudson, and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Erickson, and family, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Erickson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Monson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reiser and son, Mr. and Mrs. Anton Benson, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Benson and family, Mrs. Selma Noren and Carl Anderson. Mrs. Benson received many beautiful gifts, and her many friends and relatives departed wishing her many more such happy birthdays.

RUTH VISITS MOKENA

Mrs. Clifford White of Joliet, formerly Miss Ruth Brown of Mokena, returned to her home Saturday morning to visit her parents. She went back to Joliet Saturday afternoon and was taken Saturday evening to the hospital to undergo an operation for appendicitis.

Mrs. White, who graduated from the Mokena High School last year, was a telephone operator in the Mokena telephone office. She has been traveling with Mr. White who is in the employ of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. They expect to remain in Joliet for two or three weeks.

SCHOOL CHILDREN CELEBRATE WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

The school children of the Mokena school will have Friday for their own will this week, for there will be no school on that day. This does not hurt any of the pupils' feelings. Several of the school children wished to have Lincoln's Birthday as a holiday but the school board did not see it that way. They thought that there was Washington's Birthday coming in the near future, and the school children would want that day off. Beside this the spring vacation is nearing, and it will be prolonged into two weeks in case the new school house is ready for occupancy at that time. Let us hope that it is.

THE A. & P. STORE CLOSSES

The A. & P. store which has been in Mokena for about two years, closed Saturday night. Mr. Howatt, manager of the store, got a letter from the general manager telling him that he was not doing enough business so the store was closed.

If the A. & P. stores do not take in a thousand dollars or so each week, they have to be closed. Saturday was a great business day at the local A. & P. store. When the people of the vicinity heard that the store was to be closed, they flocked in and bought in large quantities. One purchaser, who has been a regular patron of the A. & P. bought $75 worth of goods.

While the A. & P. may be missed by some, the community at large will not suffer. There are two modern-up-date grocery stores left in town, owned by local people, which can adequately take care of all Mokena's grocery business.

KING WINTER AT WORK

Old King Winter is still here. He has been accompanied by Giant Blizzard, who is still blowing, but all petered out. Coasting and skating have been dulled to a fine point because of the recent snowfall. It is

How to Construct Model Planes

By Carlos Hall

With the increased interest in aviation has come the building of models of these wonderful planes that are slowly but surely taking over the world's commerce. I know there are a great many people working on these tiny ships, that have made such wonderful records but only a very few have had the opportunity to gain any great knowledge of the scientific facts that control the destinies of these planes.

Last year at the Joliet High School a small group of boys started making flying models. This group gradually increased in number and now this year there is in the general shop course a class in model making. The school supplies the necessary balsa wood, piano wire, bamboo, and other things which go into the construction of the planes. Also nearly all the Chicago schools have a similar course in their curriculum. This interest is rapidly spreading through the entire country. There are prizes awarded for endurance records and other branches of model making. In light of this I have decided to give a little help to some of the young aviators who might find it of some benefit.

In the first place, the natural tendency is to try and copy some famous plane like the "Spirit of St. Louis", Byrd's North Pole Fokker, Chamberlain's endurance plane, or any number of others. In the hands of an experienced model maker these models can be made to perform very well, but for a beginner the best type of ship to start on is one of the flying stick models, such as the Baby R. O. G. The plans of this can be procured from Merrill Hamburg, American Boy Building, Second and Lafayette Boulevards, Detroit, Michigan.

In making these planes the thing to strive for is lightness. The greatest error that any beginner has to contend with is his tendency to make parts strong, heavy and apparently substantial. In Detroit at the last contest some of the planes had wings so flimsy that they just drooped down and after the plane got into the air the weight of the motor stick gave them the necessary dihedral angle.

Don't try to make a plane in a few hours. A good plane may take a couple of days to construct, but it is worth it. I myself have spent as long as two weeks of steady work on a model.

As to tools, the necessary ones are a good knife with a small sharp blade, a pair of round nosed pliers.

Steffen Sale Will Continue

P. E. Steffen, well known Orland Park store keeper, who is selling out his shoe and clothing store, is going to continue the sale now in progress until everything is sold. Great many bargains still await the buyer at the sale. Read over some of the many items listed in Mr. Steffen's ad. in this issue and take advantage of the bargains offered while they last.

Auto Hit By R. I. Train

Gougar's crossing west of New Lenox was the scene of a serious auto accident when a Rock Island suburban train east bound leaving Joliet at 11:45 o'clock struck an auto on this crossing. One man by the name of Stuart was driving the car and was badly injured. He was taken to a Joliet hospital. The accident occurred Wednesday noon.

Green Garden Couple Married Fifty-five Years

Wednesday of this week marked a very important event in the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Hasenjaeger of Green Garden for that day marked their 55th wedding anniversary.

Mr. Hasenjaeger who is 74 years old, was born in the town of Green Garden. Mrs. Hasenjaeger who is 73 years old, was born in Hessen Cassle, Germany.

They were married in Green Garden 55 years ago, February 20, 1874. Nine children were born to them, of whom five are now living. They are two sons, George and Fred, and three daughters, Mrs. John Heitmann, of Manhattan, Mrs. Edward J. Fuss, of Joliet and Mrs. Harold Folkers of Frankfort.

Mr. Hasenjaeger has been cashier of the Citizens Bank of Frankfort for the past 21 years. Both Mr. and Mrs. Hasenjaeger are in good health.

Taxes Are Due

I will be at the following places to collect taxes on dates given: Citizens Bank of Frankfort, Feb. 23, Feb. 27; March 2, 6 and 9. Frankfort State Bank, Feb. 26; March 1, 5 and 8th. Mokena State Bank Feb. 25, 28; March 4 and 7th. FRANK B. MARTI, Deputy Collector, Frankfort Township.

hard to guess what will happen next. Sunday Old Man Sunshine came out and helped melt the snow and ice. His help was criticized by many, however, for many cars got splattered with muddy water. If he would come out when it is snowing and change the snow to rain and wash the cars, he would be liked by all.

The Town Doctor

SAYS

WHY SHOULDN'T YOU GET BEHIND AND PUSH

Mice will stick their heads into cheese traps; flies still swarm atop poisoned honey; moths still fly into the candle flame; bumble bees still swarm to a buzzing jug; sheep still follow the leader over a cliff; a salmon fish still swims up the river.

They Never learn anything—no matter how many examples, how many experiences of their fellows—they go on doing the same thing in the same way, generation after generation—and die.

A town that doesn't learn and profit from the experiences of other towns will go the same way as the mouse, the fly, the moth, the bee, and the "poor fish." Because they do not learn from experience is reason for 91 towns in one state alone to pass out of existence in a ten-year period—an average of one to a county for some states. Such towns are in a rut—and the only difference between the rut and the grave is its depth.

Who doesn't know that to stand still is getting nowhere? In nature in business—in every human endeavor

Tinley Garden Club All Set For Chicago Flower Exhibition

Two competitions for garden clubs which are new this year, in the Chicago Garden and Flower show which is to be held at the hotel Sherman from Feb. 25 to March 3, are attracting much interest. They are the window box, and little garden sections. Seventeen clubs will make little gardens of living plants.

This is distinct from the miniature garden contest, which calls for toy models on the scale of 1-4 inch to the foot. The little garden averages about 150 square feet in area, and will demonstrate in a life-size way how small spaces may be transformed into spots of beauty.

The clubs which have entered for this contest are: Freeport, Crystal Lake, Peony and Iris chapters; Lombard; Kenilworth House and Garden; Glen Ellyn; Downer's Grove; Wheaton; Wilmette; Glencoe; Blue Island; Arcadia Terrace, Riverside, Oak Park and River Forest, Evanston and Barrington.

Each of these exhibits will contain a definite idea applicable to any home garden, something which visitors to the show may take away with them, for reproduction at home.

The window box competition will illustrate the decorative use of flowers in connection with a window, either indoors or outdoors. Indications are that most of the exhibits will be viewed as from indoors, even though the window box may be an outdoor box. Contestants are placing great stress upon window drapes, and harmony between the flowers in the box, and the curtains at the window. Manager John A. Servas has designed a striking method staging these exhibits. Each will have a practical window and a section of wall space which may be decorated; and the window boxes will be uniform in size.

Modernistic effects will be numerous, it is reported; but there will also be many more orthodox decorations, relying upon color harmony for victory.

An interesting exhibit is promised from the Decatur Garden Club of Decatur, Ill. Henry D. Spencer, secretary of the club, has written to Manager Servas that he is sending an exhibit of 15 different kinds of nuts which can be grown in Illinois gardens.

Enteries have been received in the commercial cut flower classes from St. Louis, and Denver, Colo. It is expected that the cut flower display will be much larger than in the past. All florists organizations in the Chicago district are cooperating with the show. Leonard E. Vaughan, president of the Society of American Florists, the national florists organization, is chairman of the general flower show committee.

Mrs. Frederick Fisher, president of the Garden Club of Illinois in commenting upon the little garden competition said: "These exhibits will demonstrate that beauty is not measured by the foot. I am sure that everyone of them will give the beholders a thrill. The garden show will open the eyes of many who have never understood the pleasure that beauty may impart."

Bond Issue Fight Goes to High Court

Choosing to stand by their amended bill, which was dismissed for want of equity by Judge Frederick A. Hill, of the Will County Circuit Court, taxpayers seeking an injunction to halt the sale of $1,750,000 highway bonds of Will county to H. C. Speer and Sons, of Chicago, filed an order for an appeal to the appellate court Tuesday.

The court has allowed the complainants 30 days in which to file an appeal bond of $500. If this bond is filed it is understood that the case will be heard by the higher court.

—to cease to grow is to perish—once way or another.

Bruce Barton says, "When we quit changing we are through."

The change that will pay the greatest dividend to any community is for the citizens to quit thinking that their town is something that will take care of itself, or that the mayor, the heads of the service clubs and other civic organizations will do whatever has to be done.

Refusal on your part to THINK about your community—refusal to change your attitude from passive to active, is COSTING YOU money.

You and a few others, by changing positions from in front leaning backwards to the one behind pushing forward will MAKE YOU money and make your community a better, more attractive, more interesting place in which to live, work, play and make money.

It's a man to man proposition; Is there any real reason why you shouldn't get behind and push?

Orland P. T. A. Celebrates Birthday

The Orland Park P. T. A. celebrated its first birthday anniversary on Thursday evening, Feb. 14 with a program that was both impressive and educational. It was peculiarly appropriate that the Annual Founder's Day Memorial should fall upon the same date, so a very pleasing combination program, commemorating both events had been arranged.

A fair turnout of members and friends were present when President H. Adele Cooper called the meeting to order. After the usual routine business was disposed of Mrs. Sadie Glahn read a paper on Founder's Day, its significance, its importance and embodying an eulogy of the life of that noble woman, Mrs. Theodore W. Birney who conceived the idea of the P. T. A. and who with the assistance of that equally great humanitarian, Mrs. Phoebe Hearst, dedicated her life to the furtherance of that ideal. Then followed a pageant representing the aims, ideals, and history of the Association worked out in allegory and culminating in the impressive Candle Lighting Ceremony. It required forty-six members to fill the different roles in the allegory and it was an inspiring and long to be remembered sight.

Following the ceremony, a history of the Orland Park Association, prepared and read by Dr. Sherman S. Knox, recounted the fine progress as made in the first year of their existence.

Charles Doctor, the genial and competent School Treasurer, who was introduced very fittingly as the "best township supervisor in Cook County", spoke at length on the home associations and the attitude in the home in regard to the growing child. Charles's talk was full of good homely truth and sound horse sense and was well received by all present.

Royal Glahn rendered a very pleasing number on the violin, and Gladys Townsend presided at the piano during the singing of the special song service of the pageant.

The free will offering incidental to the Annual Founders Day celebration netted a substantial amount which will be used by the National Council to further the work of the Association.

That cake baking is not a lost art was ably demonstrated by the ladies. There were cakes of all sizes and descriptions, angel foods, nut cakes, devil's food sunshine, orange and sponge and what have you—all baked and donated by the ladies.

The Founder's Day cake, which was a huge double decker affair was the product of the joint efforts of Mrs. Tom Davidson and Mrs. Sherman Knox. The Orland Association Birthday cake was made by Mrs. Louise Arnold, Jr., and the coffee left nothing to be desired. That this opinion of the writer was concurred in by the membership as a whole was well demonstrated when the meeting was closed and the call to refreshment was given.

It was well onto midnight when the last mouthful of cake was eaten and the last cup of coffee drank and the members wended their way homeward, well fed, intellectually and physically at Orland Park P. T. A.'s first Birthday Party.

MOKENA P. T. A. MEETS TUESDAY EVE, FEB. 27

Orland Parish Training School Opens Feb. 25th

The Chicago Southwest Suburban Community Parish announce their fifth annual training school. It will be an interdenominational, intercommunity training school offering a course of instruction to parents, church and community leaders. This is given in cooperation with the International Council of Religious Education and the Chicago Council of Religious Education which includes all church groups.

One of the finest features of the school will be a lecture course to parents given by Dr. Hites who is a specialist in Child psychology. He is one of the outstanding men in the field on the study of family problems especially as relates to the child. He is well known in some of the communities because of his appearances before the Parent Teachers Associations. His course of lectures will be a discussion of the practical problems facing present day family life, especially concerning the relationship of the parent and child to the home, school, church and social environment. It is felt that there is a real need for this because of the problems facing parents and children and young people in this period of transition and adjustment since the war. Parents are faced with problems they find themselves unable to solve. This will give them an opportunity to consult an expert concerning these things. This is open to all parents regardless of faith or creed. This is distinctly a community course. The members of the Parent Teachers associations are especially urged to attend. All fathers and mothers should be there.

There will also be a course on training in worship and devotional life given by Miss Gloria Diener of the International Council of Religious Education. This will be especially for Sunday School Superintendents and Sunday School teachers. It will take up a study of Christian worship and the significance of such elements as prayer, music, devotion, all talks and the various devotions underlying the development of types of worship programs. This will be suited to churches of all denominational groups and all are invited.

A course on dramatization and pageantry will be given by Mrs. Ruth Shafer of the University of Chicago. This will be open to any one from community or church groups who is interested in dramatics. It will deal with the selection of plays, casts, costuming and the staging of community and religious plays.

There will be a course in the use of story telling in religious education by Miss Lena Knapp of the International Council of Religious Education. This will be primarily for teachers of beginners, primary and junior children in the Sunday school. It will deal with the guiding principles in the teaching of these groups.

Following the precedent of other years there will be a course for the young people taking up a discussion of young peoples' problems. This will be very helpful to all young people.

Big Building Boom At New Lenox

New Lenox is going to have a big building boom in the adjoining new subdivisions according to latest reports. The McIntosh subdivision is especially slated for a heavy building boom. Many new homes are in view. Several years ago there was much talk of incorporating New Lenox in a village and with the continued development of the community this talk is again rife.

STARTS $20,000 ALIENATION OF AFFECTION SUIT

Quite a sensation was caused this week when the news leaked out that George Lauffer former Mokena farmer, now a wealthy grain dealer of Grant Park, has filed suit for $20,000 against Albert Steel also of Mokena charging alienation of his first wife, now Mrs. Steel's, affections.

Mrs. Steel formerly Mrs. Lauffer was divorced from Mr. Lauffer last summer and shortly afterward was married to Mr. Steel while Lauffer married a Chicago woman late in the fall and she has instituted divorce proceedings against Lauffer in the Cook county circuit court. She was the first woman to file suit for divorce in 1929. Attorney A. H. Krusemark is representing Lauffer in the alienation suit.

TINLEY LIONS FETE THE LADIES

The Lions Club of Tinley Park put on a most wonderful stunt last Thursday night when they entertained the ladies at a "Ladies Night" program. The fair guests were very much impressed with the activities of the Lions Club and at the many "wonderful improvements" they had in view for Tinley Park. The Lions went thru a very interesting business session. Lion President H. C. Vogt was so heavy on the gavel that he broke the handles off three of them until finally Lion C. A. Steinhagen came to the rescue with a big wooden beadle.

Robert Roecker was very clever with a suitable "take off" on each Lion member.

Music and singing with Clyde adding charm to the evening. The editor not being able to be present on account of illness in his family, was given the Lions Roar. George Schreiber of Tinley who is always the life of a party with his humor, was in his glory and his wit was much enjoyed. Our special reporter took notes, but failure of same to reach our office in time makes it necessary they be held over until next week.

A wonderful spread was served near the mid-night hour.

The wives of the members of the Tinley Park Lions Club deeply appreciate the wonderful supper and entertainment furnished for their benefit by the Lions. St. Valentine's night as the meal and entertainment were both wonderful.

The ladies realize that many hours must have been expended by the members in arranging the program, which kept everyone in good humor until time to go home.

Industrial Club of Frankfort Has Been Disbanded

The Frankfort Industrial Club which was organized about 15 years ago for the purpose of developing Frankfort, and which has been giving summer dances in the Borman Grove north of Frankfort, has disbanded. The club's lease on the grounds expires this spring and as many of the members did not care to continue with the club it was deemed best to dissolve. The club had 45 members and declared a fat dividend each year.

George Washington

WASHINGTON whose memory we evoke this month, left a priceless heritage to all Americans—the Model of Unselfish Service.

Washington—whose magnificent courage and unfaltering endurance blazed a trail to liberty and founded a Republic;

Washington, staunch champion of American ideals, whose sublime faith and wisdom made our nation—His life is an enduring monument to that cherished ideal—service to our fellow man.

This organization, in its small way, considers itself fortunate in being privileged to serve the community.

"THE BANK OF SERVICE"

To Honor Two Great Generals

LEE AND HIS GENERALS

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

IN DECEMBER of last year the following news story was sent out from Baltimore, Md.:

"Because they were his boyhood heroes, provision for the erection of a monument to Robert E. Lee and Thomas J. 'Stonewall' Jackson, Confederate generals, was made in the will of the late J. Henry Ferguson, president of the Colonial Trust company, who died November 24 last.

"The will specified that $100,000 be used from Mr. Ferguson's estate for the monument, and provided that it be erected within ten miles of the City hall in Baltimore and that it represent the parting of the two Confederate leaders prior to the battle of Chancellorsville.

"In his will Mr. Ferguson explained the provision for the erection of the monument by saying: 'They were my boyish heroes and mature judgment has only strengthened my admiration for them. They were great generals and Christian soldiers. They waged war like gentlemen, and I feel their example should be held up to the youth of Maryland.'

In most of the states which once were a part of the Confederacy and especially in Virginia, January 19 and January 21 are dates of special significance because they are the anniversaries of the birthdays of Robert E. Lee and "Stonewall" Jackson respectively. And while other sections of the country do not observe these days, as is done in the South, by the flying of both the Stars and Stripes and the Stars and Bars from public buildings each day from sunrise to sunset on January 19 to January 21 inclusive, all Americans can understand and applaud this latest project to honor the memory of two "great generals and Christian soldiers."

The careers of Lee and Jackson up to the opening of the Civil war were as follows:

Robert E. Lee was born at Stratford, Westmoreland county, Virginia, January 19, 1807, the youngest son of Major General Henry Lee, called "Light-horse Harry." He entered West Point in 1825, was graduated four years later, second in his class, and given a commission in the U. S. Engineers corps. In 1831 he married Mary Custis, who was the daughter of G. W. P. Custis, adopted son of Washington and the grandson of Mrs. Washington. By 1833 he had attained the rank of captain and took part in the Mexican war, repeatedly winning distinction for conduct and bravery.

After the war engineering work engaged him until 1852, when he was appointed superintendent of West Point, and during his three years there he accomplished many important changes.

The career of Lee from the time of his appointment to the post at West Point until April, 1861, when Virginia seceded from the Union was closely identified with the Federal army. While personally opposed to the principle of secession, Lee felt that his greatest duty was to Virginia. He refused the command of the field army, about to invade the South, becoming instead the highest ranking officer in the army of the Confederacy.

"Stonewall" Jackson was born at Clarkeburg, Va. (now West Virginia), January 21, 1824. Beginning his military life with a nomination to West Point, Thomas Jonathan Jackson took part, after being graduated in the Mexican war as second lieutenant in the First U. S. Artillery.

In 1851 he obtained an appointment as professor at the Virginia Military Institute at Lexington where for ten years he taught natural science, the theory of gunnery and battalion drill. Though he was not a good teacher, his influence both on his pupils and those few intimate friends for whom he relaxed the gravity of his manner was profound.

A thorough appreciation of this quality of leadership gave Jackson the command of the corps of V. M. I. when Virginia seceded in 1861. By July of that year he had been promoted to the rank of brigadier-general, and had so well employed this short time for training his men that on the first field of Bull Run they won for themselves and their brigadier, by their rigid steadiness at the critical moment of the battle, the historic name of "Stonewall."

While those simple biographical details tell of what they did, it is in such records as two books which have appeared recently that the story of what kind of men they were will be found. One of these is "An Aide-de-Camp of Lee," being the papers of Col. Charles Marshall, edited by Maj. Gen. Sir Frederick Maurice and published by Little, Brown and company. The other is "Stonewall Jackson, the Good Soldier," written by Allen Tate and published by Minton, Balch and company. As aide-de-camp, military secretary and assistant adjutant general on the staff of General Lee from 1862 to 1865, Colonel Marshall had an unusual opportunity for knowing Lee as few men had ever known him. That "the Union of the North and South was made indissoluble at Appomattox," as Colonel Marshall says, was shown in a dramatic fashion during the Spanish-American war when a son of Colonel Marshall performed for a son of Grant the same functions which from 1862 to 1865 the father had performed for Lee! If the "real Lee" is to be found within the pages of Marshall's book, it is not less true that the "real Jackson" is to be found in the book written with rare biographical sympathy by Allen Tate, a southerner.

A reading of these two books will convince one of the appropriateness of the proposed Maryland memorial to the two great generals, for they were so closely associated in their brilliant military achievements and, although so totally different in temperament, so much akin in many ways that future ages will probably find it easier to think in terms of "Lee and Jackson" than in terms of "Lee" and "Jackson" alone. One reviewer of Tate's biography has commented upon this fact as follows:

The figure of "Stonewall" Jackson occupies a unique place in the history of the great struggle. In point of romantic interest, he stands alone, "wrapped in the solitude of his own originality." He was the South's greatest crusader—a mystic, a zealot, a Christian soldier in whose character were blended the fanaticism of a Peter the Hermit, the daring and inflexible purpose of a Cromwell, and the subtlety of a Francis Marion. For the soldiers of the Confederacy he became, after the first Bull Run, a center of inspiration and a bulwark of confidence. And there are historians who say—among them his present biographer—that it was not at Gettysburg that the backbone of the Confederacy was broken, but at Chancellorsville with the bullet that sped out of the darkness and put an untimely end to "Stonewall" Jackson's military career. When that event occurred, the one man who understood the heart and soul and genius of Jackson, Robert E. Lee, said, "I have lost my right arm."

There were few among his associates in the war who did understand "Stonewall" Jackson. Perhaps Lee was the only one. Some regarded him as a duelist, some as a fanatic, some even as a madman. He explained himself to no one and his plans only to Lee. There was a strange understanding between these two men—an intuitive trust in each other. They were of a single mind. Had the conduct of war the first two years been left to these two, unhampered by the vacillations of Jefferson Davis and Judah P. Benjamin and the intrigues of the southern politicians, a different story might have been written of the war—unless the great result was really "written in the stars."

Jackson was the one man whose military judgment and genius Lee implicitly trusted, whose failures even he never questioned. He sent Jackson alone on the expeditions entrusted to his execution, but he remained with Longstreet. Jackson's peculiar genius for sudden, secret and overwhelming attack, Lee could always depend upon for a master stroke. Longstreet, stout in battle, was given to argument and delay. He argued and delayed at Gettysburg and it was after that battle that Lee paid his greatest tribute to "Stonewall" Jackson. "If I had had Jackson at Gettysburg," he said, "I should have won the battle, and a complete victory there would have resulted in the establishment of southern independence." But the God of battles, whom Jackson prayed, had decreed otherwise. His leaden messenger at Chancellorsville, sped in a moment of victory, took from Lee's side the one man he needed in a fateful hour.

One of the most disputed points in Civil war history has been whether or not Lee or Jackson was responsible for the great flank movement at Chancellorsville which sent "Fighting Joe" Hooker's big army flying out of the Wilderness before the much smaller force of Confederates. In regard to this General Maurice, the editor of the Marshall papers, says:

This is the question which, it seems to me, Colonel Marshall settled conclusively. He says not only that the plan was Lee's, but that Jackson at first demurred to it as being too hazardous. However, on learning that Lee had decided that a frontal attack on Hooker's entrenched army in the Wilderness was out of the question, and that a way had been found round Hooker's flank, Jackson at once accepted Lee's plan and threw himself with enthusiasm into the task of carrying it through.

We now have Lee's statement to Mrs. Jackson that he had told her husband that he was opposed to a frontal attack and that the attack must be made by the Confederate left. Tate's statement that Jackson said to Lee, "Show me what to do and I will try to do it," Jackson's statement: "Most men will think I planned it all from the first, but it was not so," and finally Marshall's statement that "Jackson was at first opposed to the flank movement." That accumulation of evidence is decisive, and should settle forever a matter which has been debated for sixty years.

The scene at which this plan was discussed is one of the most famous in American history. In the chapter in Tate's book dealing with the battle of Chancellorsville there is a chapter subhead, appropriately called "Two Cracker Boxes," in which the scene is described as follows:

After midnight, Lieutenant Smith, Jackson's aide, woke, chilled by the damp night air. He sat up and looked round. A hundred feet away, up a slope among the trees two dim figures were gathering pine twigs and throwing them on a little fire, warming their hands as the blaze rose. They sat down on two cracker boxes left by the retreating Federals the day before. The wind rustled the pines. Their loneliness was absolute; not another man could be seen. One of the figures holding his face so that the flickering light played over it, had on a felt hat and wore a short beard which was gray. The second figure sat humped over the fire, his head drawn down into his coat collar, his long, dark beard on his chest. Down low over his forehead rested the visor of a forage cap, hiding his eyes; the dim light threw shifting beams on his sharp, aquiline nose. To Lieutenant Smith drifted the murmur of voices; the words were caught up in the breeze and lost in the pines; he fell asleep again.

The men talked on in the night. . . . It was just daylight . . . when Lee turned to Jackson and said:

"How shall we get at those people? General Jackson, what do you propose to do?"

"Go round there," he said, running his finger over the map.

"What do you propose to make the movement with?"

"With my whole corps," he said. "What will you leave me?"

"The divisions of Anderson and McLaws."

Lee thought about it a moment, then he said:

"Well, go on!" He took a pencil and moving it up and down gave Jackson his last instructions. Jackson sat smiling and nodding his head. Then getting up from his cracker box he saluted.

"My troops will move at once, sir!"

If the plan was Lee's, the execution of it was Jackson's and the result is history—how this surprise attack on Howard's corps rolled the right of the Union army back in confusion, how the panic spread through Hooker's army and how Jackson saw his chance to destroy the whole Federal force. Then in the moment of his victory this brilliant leader of his devoted "Stonewall Brigade," who would have followed "Old Jack" anywhere, was struck down by the bullets of his own men who saw a shadowy group of horsemen and thought they were Federal cavalry.

Lee, hearing of the tragedy, wrote Jackson a note. He said: "I cannot express my regret at this occurrence. Could I have directed events, I should have chosen for the good of the country to be disabled in your stead. I congratulate you upon the victory, which is due to your skill and energy." There spoke the great man who would give praise to a subordinate for success and who would have been equally quick to have assumed full responsibility for that subordinate's failure, if he had failed. When Lee's aide brought Jackson the note, he said: "General Lee is very kind, but he should give praise to God." The next morning Jackson seemed to be getting better and Lee sent this message: "Give him my affectionate regards and tell him to make haste and get well, and come back to me as soon as he can. He has lost his left arm, but I have lost my right."

But though his wounds were healing, pneumonia, brought on by his exposure before Chancellorsville, developed, Tate described the end of this great warrior as follows:

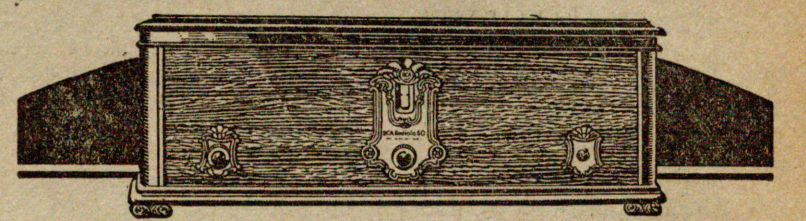

His little girl was brought in, and he brightened; then he fell into delirium. He talked, talked. He was on the battlefield. Now he was at Lexington. For a long time he lay still. Then he cried:

"Order A. P. Hill to prepare for action! Pass the infantry to the front! Tell Major Hawks—"

He lay still again. After awhile he said in a clear voice:

"Let's cross over the river and rest in the shade of the trees."

You Can't Dye a Dress with Promises!

You can't dye a dress—no matter how careful you may be—without real color. That's the idea behind Diamond Dyes. They are made to give you real service. They contain from three to five times more aniline than other dyes on the market.

Next time you want to dye, try Diamond Dyes. See how easy it is to use them. Then compare results. Note the absence of that re-dyed look; of streaking, or spotting. See how soft, bright, new looking the colors are. Then observe how they keep their brilliance through wear and washing. If you don't agree Diamond Dyes are better dyes, your dealer will refund your money.

The white package of Diamond Dyes is the original "all-purpose" dye for any and every kind of material. It will dye or tint silk, wool, cotton, linen, rayon or any mixture of materials. The blue package is a special dye, for silk or wool only. With it you can dye your valuable articles of silk or wool with results equal to the finest professional work. When you buy—remember this. The blue package dyes silk or wool only. The white package will dye every kind of goods, including silk and wool. Your dealer has both packages.

Gasoline tax and Chicago revenue bills, both of importance to all of the counties of the state, are big subjects for discussion before the present session of the Illinois legislature. Public hearings on both bills have been set for the senate, and house members will also consider the 3-cent gasoline tax bill which is supported by Governor Emmerson and give attention to the revenue bills which have been passed by the house but which have been delayed in the senate. The revenue bills, in their original form, applied only to Cook county. When the three bills reached their passage stage in the senate, Senators James J. Barbour and A. A. Huebsch questioned the legality of the bills and urged delay.

With Gov. Louis L. Emmerson acting as chairman, more than 2,500 persons gathered in the state arsenal recently to pay tribute to and to show the love and respect they hold for the memory of Abraham Lincoln. Rev. Adelbert P. Higley, pastor of the Calvary Presbyterian church, Cleveland, and Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes, resident bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, Chicago, extolled him as a statesman and humanitarian, Miss Helen Nicolay, daughter of Lincoln's private secretary and biographer and personal friend, and herself an authority on Lincoln, was chief speaker at the Lincoln dinner celebration.

Representative Homer J. Tice, Greenville, has offered a bill to organize and regulate mutual insurance companies to insure against the liabilities of farm or agricultural laborers, and labor incident to the erection, alterations or repair of farm buildings, and domestic service on farm premises. This bill provides for a law which will enable the employer of farm or agricultural labor and labor incident to agricultural or farm operations and premises, to secure adequate insurance against injury to an employee, and to safeguard the employee in case of accidental injury.

To investigate and report violations of the motor vehicle law and to cooperate with state and local authorities in the enforcement of all criminal laws, are among the duties of highway patrolmen in the Dunlap bill now pending before the senate. It is probable that a public hearing of the bill will be held in the near future and representatives of various organizations will be present. The bill is an entirely new measure from the one Senator Dunlap has supported in former sessions. It creates the department of public safety, the director of which will receive $7,000 annually, together with a number of deputies. The bill, its sponsor believes, does not contain objectionable features which have drawn fire from organized labor in other years. The proposed law places under the new department present highway patrolmen and also automobile investigators who have been under the supervision of the secretary of state.

Expenditure of $40,000,000 over a period of several years to carry out Governor Emmerson's recommendation for immediate relief of crowded conditions in state hospitals is proposed in a report of experts received a few days ago by Rodney H. Brandon, director of the state department of public welfare. Proposal is made that a total of $40,000,000 be expended during the next five bienniums with an initial expenditure of $20,000,000 in 1929-30. The commission would erect a hospital for 2,500 patients at Manteno; make accommodations for 1,000 patients at Alton; secure 5,000 acres of land in Cook county; erect in Cook county one hospital for 2,500 patients; include in the Cook county building a research hospital with 100 beds; on this Cook county tract erect accommodations for 500 feeble-minded patients for special study to determine their fitness to return to the community, and obtain a site and erect accommodations for 250 behavior problem patients.

Representative J. W. Harris, Chicago, has introduced a bill in the house which reads as follows: "Any officer of any county, city, township, school district or other municipal corporation who appoints or votes for the appointment of any person related to him by blood or marriage within the third degree as computed by the rules of the civil law, to any office, position or employment in any department of such county, township, school district or municipal corporation, when the salary, wages, pay or compensation of such appointee is to be paid out of the public funds or fees of such office, is guilty of malfeasance in office."

A delegation from Indiana and southern Illinois conferred with Governor Emmerson recently regarding an appropriation by Illinois toward the proposed George Rogers Clark memorial at Vincennes, Ind.

The structure, to be dedicated to the memory of Clark, will be located in a 13-acre tract at Vincennes, the site of old Fort Sackville, which was captured by Clark in February, 1779. The proposed memorial will cost approximately $3,000,000 and will be financed by funds from the federal government and midwestern states.

Dr. Isaac D. Rawlings, director of the state department of public health for the past eight years, has tendered his resignation to Gov. Louis L. Emmerson. The resignation, effective February 14, has been accepted. Doctor Rawlings will become assistant health commissioner of the city of Chicago. He was appointed state health director February 3, 1921.

Bills have been introduced in the house by Minority Leader Michael I. Igoe and in the senate by Senator George M. Reynolds to amend the present state banking laws in order to clarify the act where the language is ambiguous as to supervisory powers, and to give added powers to supervising authorities.

All aliens in state institutions will be deported, other inmates will be required to work eight hours a day at productive labor with a view to making the state institutions self-supporting as far as possible, and construction of a women's reformatory will be rushed, Rodney H. Brandon, new director of public welfare, announced a few days ago in outlining departmental policies that are expected to revolutionize the charitable and penal problems in Illinois. The deportation order will affect about 1,000 aliens now in state institutions at a cost of $1 a day. Criminal aliens will not be deported until they have served the minimum term imposed by the law.

Tuberculosis and accidents are the enemies of greatest danger to the health and lives of youth and young adults between the ages of fourteen and thirty-five. The first is the worst of the two. No other hazard approaches either in frequency as a cause of death in the age group specified. These facts are pointed out in a statement issued recently by Dr. Isaac D. Rawlings, who has resigned as state director of public health. Tuberculosis and accidents combined accounted for 3,770 out of 9,966 deaths from all causes among persons between fourteen and thirty-five in Illinois in 1927.

One of the busiest departments in the state house at the present time is the corporation department in the office of William J. Stratton, secretary of state. The collections by this department of Mr. Stratton's office for January show a substantial gain over the month of January, 1928, as is evidenced by the fact that in January, 1928, there were collected from domestic corporations by the secretary of state, fees to the amount of $48,063.26 and from foreign corporations, $29,576.73; for the month of January, 1929, there was collected from domestic corporations, $63,716.12, and from foreign corporations, $16,155.37.

The Illinois state fair grounds, a city beautiful within its confines, is a plan suggested in state circles, the beginning of which may come with generous appropriations at the session of the general assembly. A building group with the half-million-dollar grandstand as the center is under consideration and it is probable that State Architect Charles H. Hammond will find time soon to visit the ground and submit a plan for building which will be followed in the future. The total appropriation would not be asked at a single session of the assembly but a sufficient amount to begin may come from this assembly. Redecorating of present permanent structures will be a part of the program for this year.

Flood control in the Illinois river valley promises to be one of the important subjects for consideration at the present session of the general assembly. The report of the state commission has been presented to the house and senate, and Senator A. S. Cuthbertson, Bunker Hill, will introduce a bill soon appropriating $3,000,000 for the work. It is probable that a number of hearings on the bill will be held. Delegations from Beardstown and other Illinois valley towns will send representatives. The state commission, appointed by the last session of the general assembly held a conference recently with Governor Emmerson, and members believe him to be in accord with the control plan suggested. Congressman W. E. Hull, Peoria, has sent a communication to the general assembly stating that an appropriation of at least $2,500,000 should be made. The government is expected to appropriate $5,000,000, thus making a total of $7,500,000 for improvements.

Adj. Gen. Carlos E. Black is receiving a number of applications for reservations aboard Governor Emmerson's special train to the inauguration of President-Elect Herbert Hoover, March 4. Twenty-two governors will attend the exercises and the Illinois delegation will be made up of state officers, members of the house and senate, and politicians from Chicago and the downstate.

Bills conforming to the recommendations of the recent report of the uniform fish and game laws commissioners are expected to be offered in the general assembly soon. The report of the committee has been referred to committees in each branch and urges the establishment of game farms at state institutions at Vandalia, Kankakee, St. Charles, Dixon and Menard. The report was presented to the upper branch of the assembly by Senator Earl B. Searcy, Springfield, and to the house by Representative Frank McCarthy, Elgin.

CHRISTIAN GROWTH

LESSON TEXT—John 1:40-42; Matt. 16:15-18; John 21:15-19.

GOLDEN TEXT—But grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Growing Like Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Growing Like Jesus.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Growing Up—To What?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Conditions of Christian Growth.

I. Following Jesus (John 1:40).

As a result of the testimony of John the Baptist, that Jesus was the Lamb of God (v. 36), Andrew followed Jesus. The proof that he really believed is that he followed Christ. This is the first essential in the Christian life.

II. Leading Others to Christ (v. 41).

As soon as Andrew had found and become acquainted with Christ, he brought his brother Peter to Christ. Christian growth can only be truly realized in the giving of oneself to the winning of souls. The one who has received the gospel, the good news, cannot help but proclaim it.

III. Confessing Jesus as the Messiah, the Son of God (Matt. 16:15-18).

The disciples had been with the Lord for several years. They had heard His wonderful words and seen His mighty works. Various opinions were extant about Him. It was now necessary for them to have a definite conception of Him. Examination came after the period of school life. As the Master Teacher, Jesus knew what it meant to the disciples to have a right conception of Himself. He knew the trying ordeal through which they would be called upon to pass as the time of his crucifixion drew near. Only as they perceived His deity would they be strong in the hour of trial. In answer to Jesus' pointed, personal question, Peter confessed to the absolute deity and Messiahship of Jesus. This conception of Christ is essential to salvation (John 20:31).

No one lacking it will ever be interested in the winning of souls. Besides, the denial of His deity is the supreme lie (1 John 2:22).

1. What Peter Confessed (v. 16).

"Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." It therefore involved His Messiahship and deity. This is the burning question of today. Those who have the right conception of Christ's person and mission have no trouble in the realm of science, philosophy or ethics.

2. Christ's commendation (v. 17).

He pronounced him blessed. The evidence that Peter was blessed was that he was in spiritual touch with the heavenly Father. His conception of Christ was not revealed by flesh and blood.

3. Peter's blessing (v. 18).

Christ declared that he should become a foundation stone in His church. Christ Himself is the chief cornerstone on which the church is built. Christ's person and Messiahship were confessed by Peter, and on this rock is laid the foundation of apostles and prophets (Eph. 2:20). All believers are living stones of this house (1 Peter 2:5).

IV. Peter's Restoration (John 21:15-19).

Peter grievously sinned in denying the Lord, but he made confession, shedding bitter tears over his sin and folly. The Lord tenderly dealt with His erring disciple and restored him. In his restoration, Jesus brought to Peter's mind the essential qualification for his ministry. Love is the pre-eminent gift for Christian service. To impress upon his mind this fact He three times asked the question, "Lovest thou me?" He not only asked the question three times to show the supreme qualification for service to Him, but to show that there are three classes of persons demanding His service, and that these classes need special care as well as food adapted to their state.

1. Those beginning the Christian life, babes in Christ, "Feed my lambs." The word "feed" means more than instruction. It applies to the surroundings, influences and examples.

2. The mature ones, "Feed my sheep."

This seems to mean "shepherd my sheep." The mature class of believers not only need food, but discipline. They need correction and guidance.

3. The aged Christians, "Feed my sheep."

The word "feed" here is much the same as in the first case. This is a service greatly needed today. In many places the old people are greatly neglected. All provision is made for the young people. Love is the supreme need in service to the old folks.

The Humble Person

When men are cast down, then thou shalt say, There is lifting up; and he shall save the humble person. He shall deliver the island of the innocent; and it is delivered by the pureness of thine hands.—Job 22:29, 30.

Living and Giving

Abundant life always means overflow. The Christian life that is not overflowing is spiritually sick. It is dwarfed instead of being full grown. It is carnal, not spiritual.

Bottle Drifts Many Miles

One of the longest "bottle voyages" ever recorded has just been ended in the finding of a bottle on the shore of a small island near Japan, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. According to the form it contained, the phial was thrown from a ship about 250 miles west of Mexico, November 14, 1926. It has thus traveled at least 6,500 miles, according to the drift of the ocean currents, and probably much farther. These bottles are set adrift by the hydrographic office with instructions that the finder return the paper inside after it has been marked to tell the place and date of its recovery, so that data may be obtained as to the direction and speed of the sea currents.

Mrs. John Durrum Says Could Write All Day and Not Say Enough Good About Milks Emulsion

"Have been thinking for some time of writing you in regard to Milks Emulsion."

"When I wrote you last fall I was very much discouraged. Doctors had told me for five years that I had T. B. Five doctors told me last fall that I was in advanced stages of T. B. I have taken your wonderful medicine all winter. Sometimes I would neglect taking it every hour, but would take several doses a day, and this is the first winter for seven years that I haven't spent most of the winter in bed. I haven't been in bed sick this winter, and for two years I had been so sore across my abdomen I couldn't bear to press on it. That is all gone. I do all of my housework now except washing; weight 117 pounds, and feel fine."

"I can't praise your Emulsion enough. I tell every one I talk to what it has done for me and feel ashamed if I neglect it sometimes when I know what it has done for me and what it means for me."

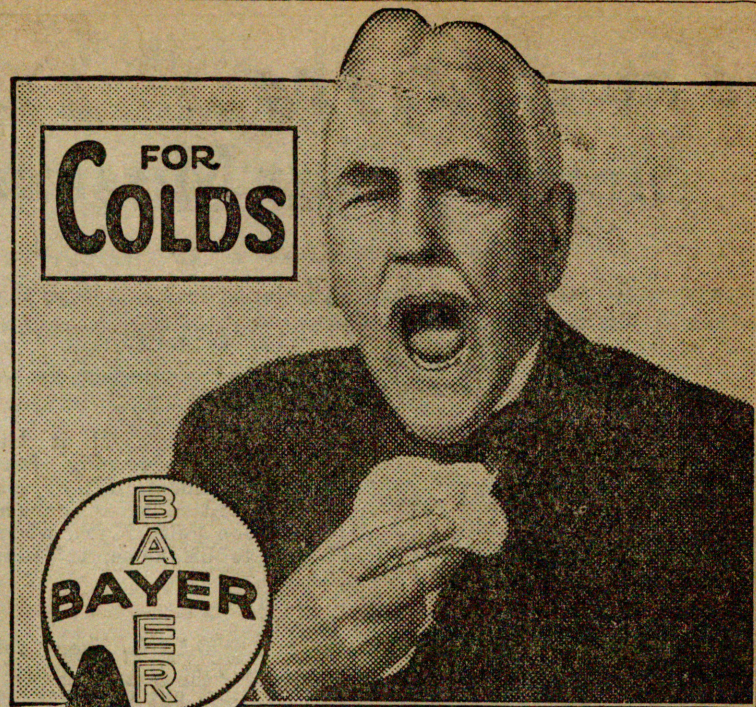

"I could write all day and could never write enough good words about Milks Emulsion." Yours truly, Mrs. John Durrum, 451 W. Green St., Frankfort, Ind.

The Story Of The Morning Star Mission

PRaised IN POEM

Many truly good men are little thought of in their home town, but Peter McCarthy is the exception to this rule. The following poem, written by a man who had observed "Pete" thruout life, appeared in the Joliet Herald-News:

Little I dreamed in the days long ago
That one like "Pete" could grow so strong
'Tis years since I knew him in the back lot path
Where daily his bare feet went scurrying past.

I stand by Pete for I know the thorns
That pierced his early brow;
And I stand by Pete for I know of the crown awaiting him now.
Many are the years he has toiled
Thru snow and wind and rain
And many and many are the souls
That he has eased of pain.

He took a tramp to his warm bright fold
Sheltered an outcast from the winter's cold;
Helped a wayfarer on the way to his home,
And fed a starving one with more than a bone.

For Pete got away from the fields of sin
And started to bring the sinners in
His sickle was sharp, his arm was strong,
He struck for the right and downed the wrong.

So today Joliet claims as a jewel rare
McCarthy's Mission known everywhere;
For Peter loves men who are down and out,
And Pete knows how to bring them out.

I love to watch him at his daily post
Standing like a lighthouse on a stormy coast,
His smiling ways and Christian light
A mariner's compass by day and night.

E. P. Ferrell, 303 1st ave.

A FRIEND IN NEED

Pete McCarthy is truly a friend in need. No call for assistance goes unanswered. A young woman, whom the mission director sent to her home in Leetonia, Ohio, in November, writes the following letter to tell him that he had been a real friend in need:

Dear Mr. McCarthy: Leetonia, O.
I am writing you a few lines letting you know I arrived home safely. My mother was very glad I came home and she wishes me to thank you for your assistance in my hour of need. Without you, I don't know what I would have done. You were a friend in the hour of need.
So God bless you and let you continue your wonderful work.

Your friend,
Anna Kovack,
617 Betz St., Leetonia, Ohio.

PASSING IT ON

As has been stated before, "Pete" McCarthy finds the county jail, the police station and the Union station his most fertile field. The following letter from a young woman, held in the county jail, whom he befriended and sent to her home in far away Mississippi.

Mr. P. H. McCarthy, 602 Collins st.
Dear Friend:

Just a short message. I arrived home safely and words cannot express how much I appreciate your helping me home. I shall always try and help others just as you did for me. May God bless you.

Yours sincerely,
Vivian Evelyn Adams,
Clarksdale, Miss.

HEARD TWO VOICES

That God works thru the Morning Star Mission is evinced by the story of Tom LaChance, an Australian by birth, who twice has been guided by the Supreme Being, once being guided to the spot where his brother was drowned, and the second time to the Collins Street Mission.

"I was living in Connecticut in 1924 and my young brother, only 19 years old, came to visit me. It was a warm night and he expressed a desire to go swimming. I knew he was a good swimmer, so I permitted him to go.

"Several hours later a voice seemed to whisper to me that he was dead. I went to the police and asked their aid, but they laughed at me. Then I obtained a boat and rowed to the spot to which the voice had directed me. There I found him dead. Altho I was an infidel then, I knew the Power on High had spoken to me.

"Tonight I was walking along the street and again the voice seemed to speak to me, telling me to go to the Morning Star Mission and there seek Christ. I didn't want to go, but some thing seemed to force me to do so, and now I am glad for I have found Christ."

FATHER THANKFUL

In far off Bradford, Ohio is a father who is thankful that Peter McCarthy and the Morning Star Mission are in Joliet. The following letter tells why:

Bradford, Ohio, Sept. 26, 1928
Dear Friend and Helper:
I am the 16 year old boy who came to you for aid a short time ago. You helped me and now I am safe and sound.

My father was very grateful and he prayed and thanked God that he had such a great man as you on this earth.

Your faithful servant,
Herbert Fuster

SUCH MEN RARE

Joliet may be thankful it has such a man as the Morning Star Mission superintendent, if the following letter written by a stranded youth in Hudson Falls, N. Y., whom "Pete" sent to his home, is to be accepted.

Mr. McCarthy,
Dear Friend:
I am sure grateful to you for what you have done for me. I don't ever care to start out on such a tour again as you seldom meet men like Mr. McCarthy, regardless of where you go. I also wish to tell you that I have been much happier since the day I was converted at your mission, and I hope to see you again some day.

Your friend,
Fred Davis.

HE WAS GRATEFUL

Old and young alike receive assistance at the Morning Star, and those who obtain such aid do not readily forget, some of them writing to express their thanks months after they have appeared at the Mission. In the following letter a man 73 years old, who was sent to his home by Director McCarthy, expresses his gratitude.

P. H. McCarthy, Polo, Ill.

Dear Sir and Brother:
Please forgive me for my long silence. I have been busy visiting old acquaintances and have not had time to write, but you have been in my mind constantly.

I pray that God's richest blessings may rest on your head and the work you do for fallen humanity. Again I can only thank you for all your kindness toward me.

Yours very truly,

W. R. Friesburg, Polo, Ill.

GAVE LARGE BLESSING

Many of Pete's converts return to attend the annual anniversary program, but some who are unable to do so write to Director McCarthy to express the regret of being unable to attend and to extend their praise. The following epistle is one of such:

P. H. McCarthy, Springfield, Ill.
Sir: Many hearty congratulations on your anniversary. May God be merciful to you, give you health and happiness and continue in you the inspiration to feed, shelter and clothe the poor.

A soul so big, a heart so large, a mind so broad as yours is surely a true sign that you are a disciple of the Master.

Many a lonely heart, somewhere out there in the world's space, that has been helped by you is offering up to God his sincere prayer, "God, I thank you for such a man as Peter McCarthy." I know God will hear that prayer even tho it comes from a sinner.

May I now add my own prayer. It is this: "God, I sincerely thank you that you have permitted me to come in contact with such a humble meek and loving Christian, who, being a true disciple and minister of Thy teachings, so unselfishly administers to them that are needy, hungry and sick. God bless him, may his years be many and his compensation great."

Truly yours,

George J. Brown.

HE WENT STRAIGHT

All creeds and nationalities have been represented among those who appeared at the Morning Star for aid, and one has yet to be refused. In the following message an Irishman records how he regards the Collins Street Mission:

Peter McCarthy, Chicago, Ill.
Supt. Morning Star Mission,
Dear Sir:
My dear and kind friend, it has been some time since I have seen you, but I thought I'd just like to write and tell you that you are the squarest man this Irishman has ever seen.

I have told thousands of people of what you have done for the poor and all of them agree that you must be one of God's own men. So God bless you, Pete, and may the Lord be with you every minute of the day.

Since the day I left your mission I have gone straight. I have forgotten the past and am thinking only of the future. Wishing you all the luck in the world.

I remain,
John P. McFadden,
Chicago, Ill.

Even the First National Bank, on whose corner "Pete" has his "downtown" office, took cognizance of the Mission anniversary in the following advertisement, which appeared in the Joliet Herald-News November 18, 1928. What could be a more fitting tribute with which to close this report?

FIRST NATIONAL COLUMBIA
PETER MCCARTHY

TODAY is the nineteenth anniversary of the founding of the "Morning Star Mission."

IT MARKS THE COMPLETION by Peter McCarthy of nearly two decades of service to his fellow men.

NO FLAGS WILL FLY in honor of the occasion; no proclamation will be issued; no bells will ring; no whistles will blow.

AND YET IN EVERY CORNER of this land there will be men and women—thousands of them—who will get down on their knees and August Hentsch attended the auto show at Joliet the past week. While in Joliet Mr. Hentsch also placed an order for 5,000 yards of crushed stone.

The Semmler family who have been ill with the flu are improving. Adeline who has fully recovered has returned to school. Ada is improving nicely as also is Mrs. Semmler. W. H. Bechstein who has been critically ill with heart trouble is showing some improvement.

Becoming frightened at a passing train, the team of Lester Schiek ran away. A son of Louis Ebert was driving west on Front street in a bob sled and sped up his team and managed to cut in ahead of the runaway team in front of the Krapp hardware store bringing them to a stop. No damage was done.

Miss Stella Schultz who has been ill with the flu is improving nicely. Mrs. Peter Spiess is ill with the flu and confined to bed.

John Balaz who has been ill is able to be out again. The village board will meet in monthly session next Wednesday evening.

Mrs. J. Sutter who recently went to the Silver Cross hospital, Joliet, is convalescing nicely.

The A. & P. store closed Saturday night. The unsold goods will be removed to other A. & P. stores. Mokena now only has two general stores. A few years ago there were five general merchandise stores in operation here, namely L. Zimstein, John Sutter, John A. Hatch, Frank Liess and K. Sippel.

Let Us Laugh

Caller: What a cozy little breakfast room—and the wall is so artistically splattered.

Mrs. Depew: Yes, this is where my George eats his grapefruit.

Little Willie: "Mama, is papa going to heaven when he dies?"
Mother: "Why, son, who put such an absurd idea into your head?"

"What would you do if you had a son like mine?"
"I'd work hard to disprove the theory of heredity."

Lawyer: "Can you tell me if the defendant was expensively garbed?"
Rastus (a witness): "Deed she was, sah. Ah knows expensive garbage when I sees it."

Cant Talk To Wife. Too Cross and Nervous

"Even my husband couldn't talk to me, I was so cross and nervous. Vinol has made me a different and happy woman."—Mrs. N. McCall.

Vinol is a compound of iron, phosphates, cod liver peptone, etc. The very FIRST bottle makes you sleep better and have a BIG appetite. Nervous, easily tired people are surprised how QUICK the iron, phosphates, etc., give new life and pep. Vinol tastes delicious. In Tinley Park by H. C. Vogt, Druggist.

Cranberry Cultivation
Out of a total of 29,964 acres of cranberries in the United States, 14,000 are in Massachusetts and 13,000 in New Jersey. Cranberries are little grown outside of the United States. About 100 acres are being cultivated in Nova Scotia and they have been tried with little success in Norway, the Netherlands and Denmark.

thank God for "Pete" McCarthy and his "House by the Side of the Road."

THEY WILL NEVER FORGET—these folks—how when the clouds were darkest, Peter McCarthy came to them with his sunshine, his prayers and his helping hand.

YOU WILL NOT FIND the name of Peter McCarthy in "Who's Who" you will not find it in the Blue Book or Social Register; no biographical dictionary, as far as we know, devotes an entire line to his life.

YET SOMEWHERE, some place, we like to feel, there is recorded in letters of gold, the name and the deeds, of this self-sacrificing friend of "the last, the least and the lost."

FASHIONS
for the SMART WOMAN

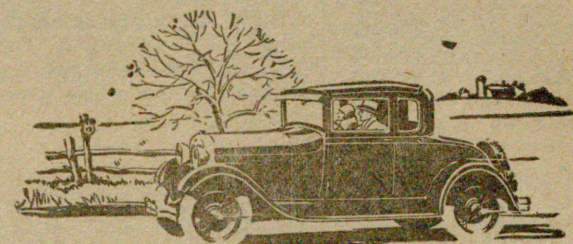

NEW SILHOUETTES

Two widely different silhouettes are illustrated by the models shown today, yet both are just as smart as they can be for street and informal afternoon wear. The frock at the left is more elaborate with its circular flounces crossing in front to give the modish softness of line. The long collar is left plain for street wear but for more formal use a ruffled edge transforms it into a flattering shawl collar. Black and white satin are used.

Severely simple is the frock at the right which is just as smart in the wash fabrics such as linen and pique, in their plain or printed versions, as it is in the silk crepes. Its distinctive feature is the scarf, which slips through a bound buttonhole below one shoulder.

First Model: Pictorial Printed Pattern No. 4703. Sizes 14 to 42, 50 cents. Second Model: Pictorial Printed

Fuel system of the new Ford has been designed for reliability and long service

THE practical value of Ford simplicity of design is especially apparent in the fuel system.

The gasoline tank is built integral with the cowl and is unusually sturdy because it is made of heavy sheet steel,terne plated to prevent rust or corrosion. An additional factor of strength is the fact that it is composed of only two pieces, instead of three or four, and is electrically welded—not soldered.

Because of the location of the tank, the entire flow of gasoline is an even, natural flow—following the natural law of gravity. This is the simplest and most direct way of supplying gasoline to the carburetor without variations in pressure. The gasoline feed pipe of the new Ford is only 18 inches long and is easily accessible all the way.

The gasoline passes from the tank to the carburetor through a filter or sediment bulb mounted on the steel dash which separates the gasoline tank from the engine.

The carburetor is specially designed and has been built to deliver many thousands of miles of good service.

Since all adjustments are fixed except the needle valve and idler, there is practically nothing to get out of order.

The choke rod on the dash acts as a primer and also as a regulator of your gasoline mixture. The new hot spot manifold insures complete vaporization of the gasoline before it enters the combustion chamber of the engine.

As a matter of fact, the fuel system of the new Ford is so simple in design and so carefully made that it requires very little service attention.

The filter or sediment bulb should be cleaned at regular intervals and the carburetor screen removed and washed in gasoline. Occasionally the drain plug at the bottom of the carburetor should be removed and the carburetor drained for a few seconds.

Have your Ford dealer look after these important little details for you when you have the car oiled and greased. A thorough, periodic checking-up costs little, but it has a great deal to do with long life and continuously good performance.

Our Subscription Premium Offer MITTEN DUSTER

FITS THE HAND LIKE A GLOVE

The Duster of a Thousand Uses

With this Big Fluffy Chemically Treated Mitten Yarn Duster, a house wife can do her house cleaning in less time and with less effort, than is required with ordinary dusters.

It does not only absorb and retain the dust as a Magnet attracts steel, but with the chemical elements retained in the Yarn by a patented process it cleans and polishes furniture and other woodwork around the house in one operation, leaving all cleaned surface with a lustre as beautiful as when new.

A CAR OWNER'S DELIGHT

It does not scatter dust from one place to another as common dusters do, but absorbs and retains it; and when soiled can readily be washed like any other yarn garment, and when dry is as clean and large and fluffy as when new.

With the aid of an Auto Mitten Duster a car owner can clean and polish his automobile in a few minutes, without soiling his hands or clothes; just once over and the car is spick and span. It makes frequent washings unnecessary, and as it takes time and money to have your car washed, the amount saved is worth while.

This Mitten Duster is also used extensively in schools, and institutions and all public buildings as well as in stores and offices.

WORTH

As a very fitting celebration of Washington's Birthday, Friday, Feb. 22nd, the Worth Community church served a Father and Son banquet. It is the custom in most communities to set aside one day in the year when the fathers and sons gather together as comrades and friends to eat and talk together, thus developing a finer relationship between the two.

All of the fathers of Worth community were invited to the banquet which was held at the church. Each father was asked to provide a place at the banquet for a son. If the father did not have a son he was provided with one from one of the families where there is more than one. The banquet was served by the ladies of the church and community.

There was a special program of speakers and some musical numbers. This was one of the big events of the year's program.

"Captain de Beaujeu, your words are so many puzzles to me," I coldly informed him. "I stood at the side of Monsieur Falest when he offered his belt to Allaquippa, who refused it. I was not in the village, however, when the dead Huron was found. I know that Allaquippa did not relish our friend's presence in the village and that he left early in the evening instead of waiting to make the journey with me in the morning as we had agreed. Do you mean to say that he and the young Englishman have not arrived?"

"The Englishman arrived, but not with Falest. It is like this Monsieur Beland: The young man arrived before daylight. But it was Lieutenant Beauvais who accompanied him."

I was tongue-tied for a good minute. It did not take me a second to realize that in the vague light of early morning Cromit had made a mistake and had killed poor Falest instead of Beauvais; that it was Beauvais and the girl who had passed so close to me when they entered the fort trail in the evening. Falest, whom I feared none, was at the bottom of the Monongahela; Beauvais, the last man I desired to meet, was due at any moment to keep a dinner appointment with me at the board. The world seemed to be tumbling about my ears. I could only say:

"I do not understand. Falest was to leave the Indian village with me. Because of Allaquippa's ill will, he changed his plans and left at night; or at least I surely believed he left at night. Now, behold! A miracle is worked. He starts with the Englishman, and it is Lieutenant Beauvais who comes in his place!"

Beaujeu smiled faintly and pleasantly said:

"It may not be a mystery after all. Lieutenant Beauvais did tell me that Falest planned to start at night and for some reason changed his plan. The Englishman who is French at heart was impatient to reach the fort and came with Beauvais instead of waiting to come with Falest. Yes, it is simple enough to get some bit of news. I shall be surprised if he does not arrive before we sit down to dinner. Ah, now it begins to straighten out. For some reason Falest left the village last night. Our belt had been refused and our Huron killed. Beauvais told me that much. Falest was unwelcome at the village, yet he tarried outside to transact some business. Perhaps to win over some of the younger Delawares. We shall know what it was all about when he comes. We shall laugh at the wonderment his change of plans has occasioned."

I left him and went wandering about the fort, seeking the Onondaga to tell him that our orondas were very simple, or had been asleep, to allow us to stick our heads into such an ugly trap. It was a warm day and yet I felt a chill as I glanced about in search of Round Paw. Let us but get through the gate and to the edge of the forest and I would ask no more of fate.

Instead of the Indian I came upon the Dinwold girl. She was standing by the water-gate. She had her hair carefully arranged under her hat, or cut off, I could not tell which. And she would pass for a young man readily enough; a very young man. Yet she had betrayed her sex to Beauvais, and I wondered if de Beaujeu also knew the truth.

Far from being surprised at seeing her, she quickly greeted: "I have been waiting for you, mister. I saw you when you come in."

"I shall call myself most lucky if you see me go out alive and not a prisoner," I told her. "I have just learned that you came here with one called Beauvais."

"At the last minute Mr. Falest changed his mind. He told me to tell the truth to Mr. Beauvais, who, he said, was a good man. Mr. Falest said he should be in such a mortal hurry to make the fort I had best go on ahead. Mr. Beauvais is a good man. I'm to go to Canada at the first chance. What do you mean about being lucky if you get out of here alive? Do they guess you're a scout for Braddock?"

"For God's sake, hush!" I cautioned; for we were near the kitchen and sharp ears might overhear us. "If Beauvais comes back from Shenago and finds me here, the Indians will burn me."

Her small face went white with horror.

"You can pass through the gate," she muttered. "Why do you wait? Go! Go now!"

"Two things hold me. The Onondaga, whom I haven't found—and you."

"Me?" she gasped.
"You must leave here and get back to the settlements where you belong. You must stop this thinking of going to Canada. It's a mad scheme. Do you believe that all men are honest, as Beauvais seems to be? You are English and cannot speak French. How do you know how you will be treated in Canada, especially after the French are whipped and any one of the English blood is pointed out to be hated? How do you know the few French soldiers, once they're driven from this place, can protect you from their own Indians? Why, child, the French themselves will be fortunate if they escape being killed by the Ottawas and Hurons. You must stop this foolishness and go back with me—if I can find the Indian and get through the gate."

"If you make me go back, I shall always hate you," she passionately returned; and could Beaujeu have seen her then he would have known she was a woman. Before I could speak an expression of great misery passed over her face and she whispered:

"And if anything happens to you I'll kill myself."

I had no patience with her, or with her sex. Fair Josephine in old Alexandria, who plighted herself to the last of the Bronds, and this elf-woman of the Witches' head, were all of a piece—always changeable.

"I'll help you if I can," I told her. "But I don't propose to go into a Huron kettle trying it unless you are willing to help yourself."

Much shouting and singing outside the eastern gate broke up our talk, and we turned and looked to see what the clamor portended. Through the gate, walking two by two, came several Frenchmen. Next came a long string of Indians. Pontiac, wearing no paint, led these, a gray blanket thrown over his shoulders although the day was very hot. Behind him came Captain Jacobs and Shingis, the leaders of the Delawares.

The Indians were whooping and singing. The cause of the demonstration puzzled me until I beheld the body of a bear, slung on a pole. Over the bear's head was draped a red coat, taken from some unfortunate English soldier, who had been caught off his guard by some of the enemy's scouts.

"He isn't with them!" whispered the girl. "Thank God he isn't with them!"

I had been holding my breath while I waited, as had she, to behold Beauvais in the procession.

"Come with me and make the forest and return to where you belong," I urged. "Then spend your life hating me if you will. The Onondaga should be near the gate. The singing would draw him to it."

But although I saw Delawares from the Susquehanna, Shawnees from Grave's Creek and the Muskingum, Mingoes from the Ohio, and Iroquois from the Long House, Ojibways and Potawatomi from the northern lakes, Ottawas from Superior, and Hurons from the Falls of Montreal and the mission of Lorette, Caughnawagas from the St. Lawrence, and even Abenaki from the far eastern streams, I failed to locate the tall figure of Round Paw of the Onondagas.

"Go on!" she whispered, as I halted just outside the gate.

"My friend, I must not leave him behind."

"Go on! I will find him and tell him," she whispered, giving me a little push.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

"He would not understand. He is no, with the savages outside. He must be inside the stockade somewhere," I was demurring, when she gave a little cry and moaned:

"Mister, you've killed both of us."

Before I could look about to learn what had prompted this lugubrious speech an arm was hooked through mine and Captain Beaujeu was genially inviting:

"Come, my friend. We will not wait for Beauvais. The Indians have killed a bear, and Pontiac tells them it's a good omen. We will have the chiefs in while we eat and give them some brandy to keep their hearts high. We will give some laced coats to the warriors who killed the bear. Come, monsieur, let us forget for a few hours that the English are drawing close, and show nothing but confidence before our red children. The Englishman shall go with us, if he will."

But the Dinwold girl was walking back toward the river stockade, and I explained:

"He speaks no French yet. He would not enjoy it."

CHAPTER VII

Beaujeu Gives a Dinner

There were six of us at the table and two empty chairs. One of these was reserved for Beauvais. I followed the example of the others on entering the room and stood my long rifle up in the corner nearest the door; but in my belt, and concealed by the skirts of my hunting-shirt, were my ax and knife. I sat facing an open window through which the savages took turns in watching us. The night was closing in hot and close, and the door, like the window, was left open about the door were grouped various tribal leaders, and the two warriors who had killed the bear.

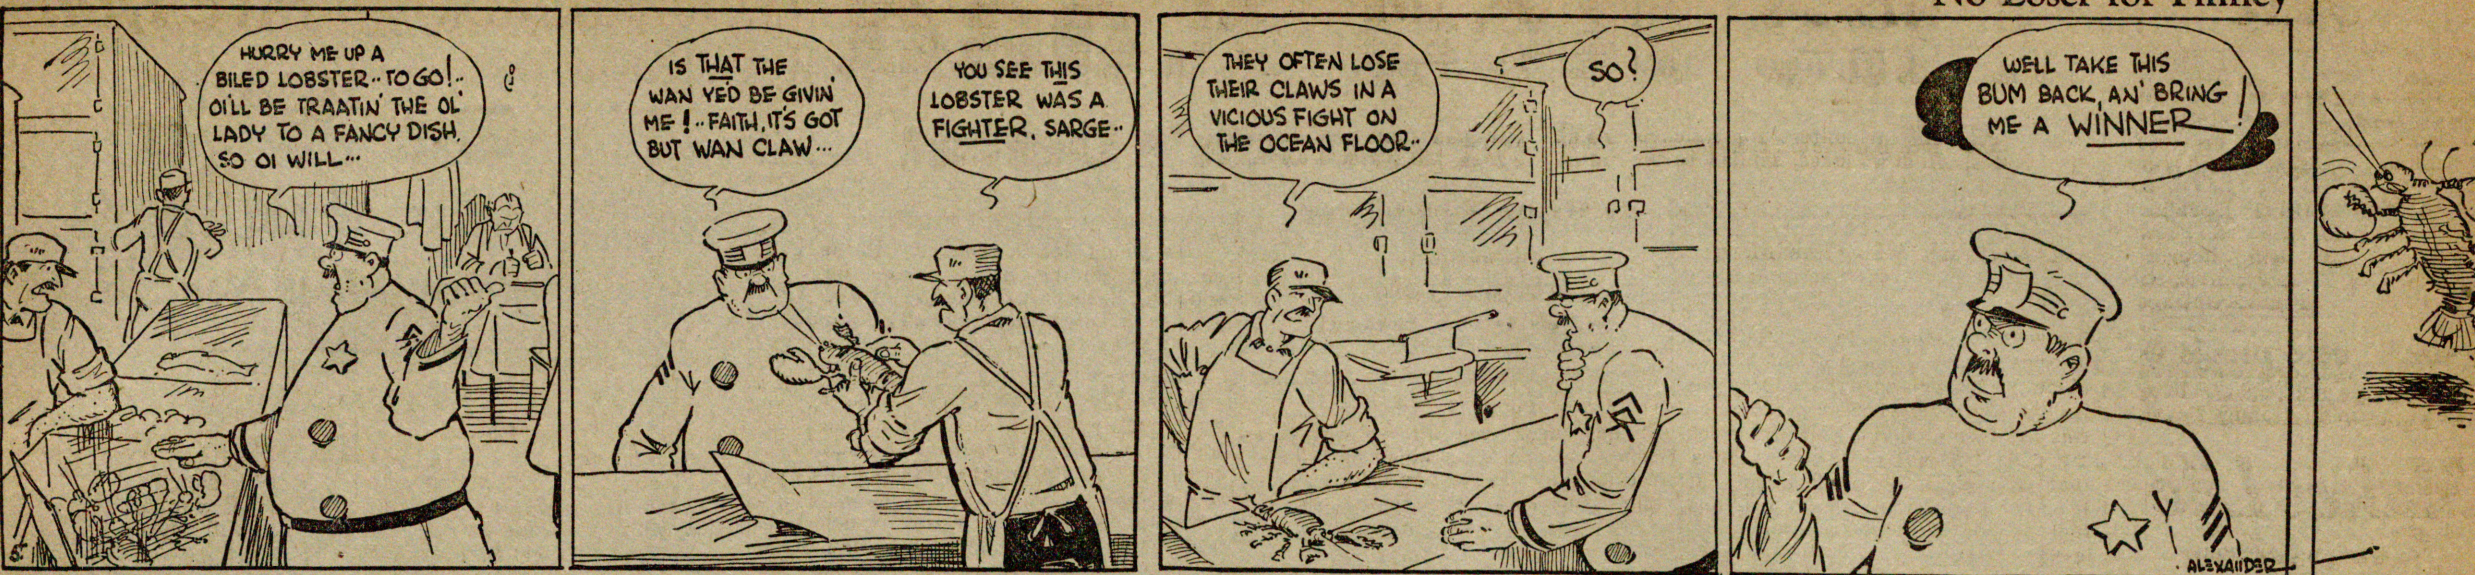

I was seated between Sieur de Carqueville and Sieur de Parieux. Beaujeu was at the head of the table and facing the open door. After we had taken our places and wine had been poured, the commandant called for two pewter dishes and filled them with brandy. Two laced coats were brought and placed beside him. Then he called for the slayers of the bear to enter. Pontiac escorted them forward.

The commandant recognized him as being the intellectual superior of the other chiefs, and rose and clasped his hand and asked him to be seated and take a glass of wine. But Pontiac seldom if ever departed from his role. He was all for the red man and preferred to remain standing while he filled the office of interpreter. He gave the impression of having but one desire—to expedite the bestowal of honors on the bear-killers. And yet his crafty mind knew what the white men were thinking; that his was the dominant personality. He could perform a humble service because it did honor to the recipient.

Captain Jacobs and Shingis, of the Delawares, for whose heads the governor of Pennsylvania would soon be offering a reward of a hundred and forty pounds apiece, were outside among the fighting men. But I do not believe they resented the great Ottawa's quickness to put himself ahead and act the mouthpiece when he was not acting the leader. Some will say that Pontiac was a fiend incarnate, one who used the peace-pipe to mask his plans for wholesale killings. My experiences early taught me that the white men, as well as red, were cruel in war. Pontiac was a great man, by whatever racial standards we judge him. And surely deceit and intrigue were practiced in the Old world long before this red leader became an adept at dissimulation.
